

Hello to All Our Neighbors

The Klamath National Forest is pleased to announce that the Draft Environmental Impact Statement (draft EIS) for the Eddy Gulch Late-Successional Reserve Fuels / Habitat Protection Project will soon be available for public review and comment.

The Notice of Availability for the document will appear in the Federal Register on July 24, 2009. On that same day, the document will be available for download from the project website. A hard copy of the draft EIS will be available at the public libraries in Etna, Fort Jones, and Yreka, CA; as well as at the Salmon River Restoration and Fire Safe Council offices in Sawyers Bar, CA. There are open houses planned in Sawyers Bar and Fort Jones, CA. Please see the website for more information. The website address is <http://www.eddylsrproject.com>.

We look forward to receiving your comments on the draft EIS during the 45-day comment period. As always, thank you for your interest in this project and for your involvement in the planning and analysis process.
